Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurRon Rash has been acclaimed as 'the best American novelist I have come upon in the last twenty years' (Scotsman), a writer with an 'exceptional quality of characterisation and storytelling' (Irvine Welsh). Set deep in the heart of the Appalachian mountains, this new collection of short stories confirms his reputation again and again. Nothing Gold Can Stay transports the reader to another place, and illuminates the world around us in unexpected ways.Revue de presse'Rash can create a character in a single sentence; this is the great American short story at its best' The Times'Burning Bright netted Ron Rash the 2010 Frank O'Connor Short Story Award and earned him comparisons to Raymond Carver, John Steinbeck, William Trevor and Cormac McCarthy... If you haven't read Ron Rash yet, you have a treat in store' Irish Times'Rash's prose is at once strong and supple, masculine and poetic, and lit up by a wealth of precise detail' Sunday Times'Remarkable... Mr Rash certainly knows how to rivet attention' New York Times'Technically absolutely beautiful - incredibly well-wrought... Ron Rash is a real storyteller' Nadine O'Regan, Frank O'Connor Award, on Burning Bright'Could sit comfortably on any bookshelf beside Cormac McCarthy and Charles Frazier' The Guardian on Serena'These are tales that put you in another place, another kind of life' Daily Mail on Burning Bright'Another fine collection from Ron Rash... his oneness with the region and its people makes an indelible impression' --Kirkus sPrsentation de l'diteurRon Rash has been acclaimed as 'the best American novelist I have come upon in the last twenty years' (Scotsman), a writer with an 'exceptional quality of characterisation and storytelling' (Irvine Welsh).
